Briefly on how value of jail articles is fixed & what profit enters between & prisoners.

Lucas

The system in vogue by which payments are made for prison labour in making carpets &c. in the Bengal & Punjab jails are governed by rule 81 of the Jail Manual.

Prison labour being unskilled is calculated at a uniform rate of annas four per head per day for the working days they are employed on the particular work in all the several industrial sections such as weaving, carpet weaving, cumlis, smithy, rattan work Pollishing &c— except in the case of jail carpets when it is charged at 8 annas per head per day—

This calculation is taken into account for fixing the prices of jail made articles. No portion of this labour is actually paid for, nor any portion of it goes into the private purse of the convicts.

But convicts who come under the operation of the remission system on certain statistics fixed in rules 314 & 315 & 316 & 317 in Chap: XVI.

The statistics so earned by them which are handed over to the jailor at the time of their release.

The Madras Jail committee of 1919-20 approve of the principle of giving the prisoner a further reward proportionate to his exertion and of rendering it available for him in as tangible and concrete form as is consistent with jail discipline, and recommend that every prisoner on task labour shall be allowed a money payment for any extra done in excess of the fixed task in proportion to the grades hereinafter. They regard that, in lieu of 1 or 1½ annas now paid, a sum of one rupee
p. m. as a reasonable one. (page 147. Jail committee report

In page 35-2: recommendation No:(203)
of the Indian Jail Committee report the following is stated
: A prisoner in jail has no right to or claim to be paid for his labour, but as an incentive to industry rewards be granted a reward for extra work" (para 25 of the report).

Readers of the system of payment for extra work can be asked to be tried experimentally in the Dy. Jail for a period of either six months or one year to know the extra cost on this account, in which case the rate of payment has perhaps to be fixed.

The opinion of the Dy. Pris may be called for, and if approved the subject may be referred to the Committee now sitting to investigate the question of the improvement of Jail discipline &c.

The remuneration proposed in Cyclostyled Memo seems to be on the whole satisfactory, except in the matter of making adequate provision for the case of a prisoner who is employed on work which is not of a productive character, for which this payment is intended to be the only reward.
The rules now proposed
do not appear to the guilt
will of exhaustive.

Rule 2(a), (d), (e) of Appendix refer to extra work as being the basis of the remuneration; while the other rules mention only "good conduct & satisfactory work". Perhaps the latter are based on the principle mentioned in Para 261 of the Jail Committee Report.

Please bring papers
and notes.

The meaning of 'tasked' and 'extra' work is not quite clear, as can be seen from the list given. In some cases, no standard is possible and it is not apparent what is to be done in their case. It is much better, so far as possible, what is being done elsewhere — say the neighbouring Presidency of Madras. The orders referred to in the Notes may perhaps be obtained.

There is also the difference between Bengal and Assam jails to be considered.

With reference to your letter No.P.601/Pris dated the 7th instant, I have the honour to state that I strongly recommend the suggested introduction,- following the procedure in force in Madras - of a system of remunerating prisoners for extra work performed by them. The amounts so earned may be pu by to the credit of the prisoner and paid to him on relea se or allowed to be periodically remitted home to his family. The m effect of such an arrangement on the prisoner is quite obvious A new meaning is attached to his daily labour and he acquires a sense of his own usefulness and responsibility which will stan him in good stead when he is set free from the Jail on the - termination of his sentence. I need hardly add that this would a reform in consonance with the modern conception in regard to actual functions of Jails.

2. There is certainly an undoubted advantage to the Government itself in the shape of a better general out-turn of work but I would prefer to regard this only as an incidental circumstance not comparable in importance with the reformation of the prisoner himself.

With reference to your No. 1111/15-23 date1 3/9/25, I have ıe honour to state that Jail industries are composed of those ıat can be gauged by task work and those that cannot be, as ıown in the enclosed list. As regards those that can be gauged / task work a remuneration not exceeding 1 rupee a month is reɔmmended for those who will show extra work over and above the ısk work asigned to each prisoner and for good conduct. As rega ıose industries which cannot be tasked a remuneration not excee ıg Rs.1-0-0 a month is recommended for satisfactory work exceed ıree months and for good conduct. This recommendation reserves deal of discretionary powers to the Superintendent to provide ɔr cases where prisoners turn out an appreciable amount of exce ɔrk and those that turn out just an apology of excess work.

In the case of Convict Warder Guards, Work-Overseers and Nig ıtchmen satisfactory work i.e., to say in the case of Convict - ırder Guards half the task work in addition to guarding duties ıd in the case of Work-overseers and Night Watchmen full task ɔrk, will be considered as entitling them to the rupee remunera
.on.

In this connection I beg to invite reference to this Office
).1152 etc., wherein it is recommended that such money rewards ıy be ordered to be exchanged for remissions at the rate of one ıy for 0-8-0 or at the prisoner's option to remit ¾th of the ɔward to his family to keep his family comfortable and save the 'eaking up of homes.

From a rough calculation of the number of prisoners who are .kely to take advantage of the benefits now offered to them, I ɛtimate the expenditure involved in these proposals at Rs.150/- ır mensem or Rs. 1800/- per year. The expenditure during the ırrent year may be met from the grant sanctioned under the head
"is: Ser: and Supplies" in the current year's Budget of this Ja

a re-appropriation statement being permitted to be submitted later on when the sanctioned grant is about to be exhausted. Separate provision will be made in future budgets to meet this expenditure.

Remuneration to convicts.

Approving the proposal of the Inspector-General of Prisons to introduce tenta Central Jail, Vellore, a system of remunerating convicts for extra work done by working hours.

No. 57, JUDICIAL, 10TH JANUARY 1913.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

READ—the following paper :—

Letter—from Lieut.-Col. R. J. MACNAMARA, M.D., I.M.S., Inspector-General of Prisons, Madras.
To—the Chief Secretary to Government.
Dated—Ootacamund, the 7th December 1912.
No.—G. 389.

On recently visiting the Vellore jail I discussed with Mr. Young, the Superintendent, the feasibility of introducing some sort of system whereby convicts might be encouraged to industry and good behaviour, by granting them, under certain conditions, a small amount of money payment from manufactory funds for any extra work they might do. I believe such a scheme to be quite practicable and have the honour to submit it for the approval of Government for introduction as a temporary measure for a year.

2. At the outset I may say that jail labour tasks are lower than the tasks performed by free workmen, and can usually be accomplished in less than an 8-hour day. There is therefore some scope for voluntary labour and no need to infringe the provisions of section 35 (1) of the Prisons Act. I propose in the first instance to confine the experiment to sandal making, because this is the main industry at Vellore and work on it admits of easy check. On questioning the convicts with regard to the proposal, most of them seemed to agree to it, while a few others dissented, thinking probably that our questions were directed to the increasing of ordinary task work.

3. A convict makes two pairs of sandals a day at present and his labour is rated at two annas for the day's task, or an anna per pair. The proposal is to credit him with one anna for every extra pair of sandals he makes. The extra work is to be quite voluntary and the convict is to be under no obligation to finish his third pair of sandals on the day he begins them, but can please himself in that matter. All we insist on is that he does not work out of working hours, that the extra sandals are acceptable, and that he gets only one anna per pair, no matter how long he takes to finish them. The effect of this system is that the convict can earn an anna a day, to be put to his credit against his release, or spent in jail, while the Jail department gets the profit which is over two annas on each pair of chrome sandals. So there is a gain to the convict and to the jail. It is not advisable to increase the earning beyond one anna at least at present.

4. By a system such as above described, a convict can by steady work earn about Rs. 20 a year, and ordinarily should have a fair sum to his credit on release. It is very necessary that earnings should be exempted from cuttings of any description as a knowledge that they were liable to forfeiture, would undoubtedly militate against success. The second part of my proposal is that the first Rs. 5 earned should be detained by the jail for delivery to the prisoner on release, but that he should be given the option of spending while in jail any sum earned above Rs. 5. The extra money might be sent at his desire to his relatives or spent on fruit or some harmless extra for his personal consumption or use.

5. I believe the scheme above outlined should work well. It will stimulate industry which is sadly needed; give the convict an interest in his work; conduce to contentment; give him a sum to start in life with, when released and lastly make an efficient and energetic workman of him. If it succeeds, it could be extended to other industries later, but for the present I would confine the experiment to the sandal making industry at Vellore.

Order—No. 57, Judicial, dated 10th January 1913.

The Inspector-General's proposal to introduce tentatively in the Central Jail, Vellore, a system of remunerating convicts employed in making sandals for work done by them in excess of their allotted tasks, is approved.

2. The Inspector-General should submit a report on the working of the system after it has been in operation for one year.

Remuneration to Convicts.

Sanctioning the continuance of the system of remunerating convicts for extra work done by them in those jails where the conditions of labour are favourable to it and accepting, subject to certain condition, the Inspector-General's proposal to allow convicts the option of earning a day's remission in lieu of every 4 annas earned by them under this system.

G.O. No. 57, Judicial, dated 10th January 1913.

ABSTRACT.—Approving the proposal of the Inspector-General of Prisons to introduce tentatively in the Central Jail, Vellore, a system of remunerating convict for extra work done by them during working hours.

II

Letter—from Lieut.-Col. R. J. MACNAMARA, M.D., I.M.S., Inspector-General of Prisons.
To—the Chief Secretary to Government.
Dated—Ootacamund, the 7th March 1914.
No.—G. 93.

With reference to G.O. No. 57 of the 10th January 1913 (paragraph 2), I have the honour to submit herewith a copy of a letter and statement sent by Major Robb, the Superintendent of the Vellore Central Jail, on the labour payment system under trial in that jail during the past year.

2. Major Robb's letter scarcely needs comment from me, as his figures show that the experiment at Vellore was very successful indeed. Briefly put, 92 convicts earned Rs. 433 and turned out 6,933 extra pairs of police sandals. This was not alone a distinct benefit to the convicts in question, but the benefit was gained without the jail being in any way put to monetary loss. I consider therefore that the experiment justifies its continuance.

3. I regret to report that in other jails where the system was tried, the results are not, as far as I am aware, very successful. Whether this is due to the present tasks being so adjusted as not to admit of anything much extra being done, or whether it means that convicts entertain some misgivings that the experiment was a ruse to ascertain what they were capable of doing, with a view later to a general all round increase in the table of tasks, I am scarcely prepared to say. If the latter, it is possible that time may remove these unwarranted suspicions, and if the tasks are, as has been stated, as full as they can be made and no latitude is allowed for doing anything extra, it may be a question for consideration as to whether a little adjustment may not be called for.

4. During my inspections of jails, I was told that some prisoners said that they had enough work to do already and others said they did not want money, but were prepared to do extra work if they got a fair amount of remission for it. A third lot no doubt think that the small amount of remuneration offered is a poor set off against the exertion demanded and prefer to continue as they are. All this is of course supposing that they consider the offer genuine. It seems to me that the extra remission idea, if worked upon, might come to something. Our rules, though allowing of the grant of extra remission for extra work, leave it to the Superintendent to make the award as he may judge fit. There is too much uncertainty about this arrangement, as so much depends on the Superintendent and the opinion he holds of the prisoner, to induce the latter to accept such a precarious offer. The convict generally wants to know at the outset what the reward is to be and this is exactly what the rules do not tell him. Moreover the remission is liable to be all forfeited for some offence or other. I believe if a convict were offered one day's remission in lieu of every 4 annas earned under the labour payment rules and that remission so rned was not to be forfeited on any account, some prisoners would accept the nditions. Those who preferred to get the money could of course get it, but without e remission. I would suggest trying this proposal. Under rule 16 of the remissior les the total special remission earnable in a year is limited.

ENCLOSURE.

Letter—from Major J. J. ROBB, M.B., I.M.S., Superintendent, Central Jail Vellore.
To—the Inspector-General of Prisons.
Dated—the 19th February 1914.
No.—G. 206.

With reference to your order No. 469, dated 21st January 1913, I have the honour to repor iat the system of giving remuneration to convicts doing extra work in sandal making wa iven effect to from 1st February 1913 and has been in force for one year. During this perio 2 convicts earned money by doing extra work over and above the allotted task and the tot mount earned by them was Rs. 433-5-0 for 6,933 pairs of sandals finished by them. Th aximum amount earned by one convict was Rs. 21-4-0.

The convicts are pleased with the system and I recommend that it may be permanent ontinued in respect of sandal industry.

earned was not to be forfeited on any account, some prisoners would accept the conditions. Those who preferred to get the money could of course get it, but without the remission. I would suggest trying this proposal. Under rule 16 of the remission rules the total special remission earnable in a year is limited.

Letter—from Major J. J. Robb, M.B., I.M.S., Superintendent, Central Jail, Vellore.
To—the Inspector-General of Prisons.
Dated—the 19th February 1914.
No.—G. 206.

With reference to your order No. 469, dated 21st January 1913, I have the honour to report that the system of giving remuneration to convicts doing extra work in sandal making was given effect to from 1st February 1913 and has been in force for one year. During this period 92 convicts earned money by doing extra work over and above the allotted task and the total amount earned by them was Rs. 433-5-0 for 6,933 pairs of sandals finished by them. The maximum amount earned by one convict was Rs. 21-4-0.

The convicts are pleased with the system and I recommend that it may be permanently continued in respect of sandal industry.

2. A list showing the earnings of each convict is enclosed.

Order—No. 772, Judicial, dated 31st March 1914.

The Government are glad to receive a favourable report on the system of remunerating convicts in the Central Jail, Vellore, for extra work done by them and they agree that it should continue in those jails where conditions of labour are favourable to it. The Inspector-General's proposal to allow convicts the option of earning a day's remission in lieu of every 4 annas earned by them under this system is accepted, subject to the condition that not more than 60 days' special remission should be granted to any one convict in one year. The Government do not, however, hink it desirable to declare that such remission cannot be forfeited.
